Re: "Restoring Internet Freedom" in FCC WC Docket 17-108

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to strongly OPPOSE "Restoring Internet Freedom". This is nothing more than a thinly veiled attempt to allow Internet and Cable providers free rein regarding data mining my personal Internet history, control over what sites I visit, how much speed they will grant the customer based on monthly costs, re-routing my data to satisfy their advertisers etc. This is NOT in the consumers' interests but rather in the corporations that control cable and internet delivery. The fact that the current FCC chairman is an ex-Verizon lawyer speaks volumes as to where his loyalties lie.

I am asking the FCC not to remove the Internet from Title II and its Common Carrier Net Neutrality rules.

Sincerely,

Judith E. Manni
